

'Mixité': an urban and housing issue?

Mixing people, housing and activities as the urban challenge of the future

CALL FOR PAPERS

The LISST (UMR 5193 CNRS / UTM) will be organizing the 23rd Conference of the ENHR (European Network on Housing Research) at the University of Toulouse II-Le Mirail from July 5 to 8, 2011.

The Conference will combine workshops (roughly 25) and six plenary sessions, whose main theme will be "Mixité" ("Mixité": an urban and housing issue?). While many researchers have reservations about a certain ideal of diversity that is supposed to banish the evils afflicting contemporary societies (segregation, ghettoization, the disintegration of social ties), they also question the normative or prescriptive dimensions of the injunction for social diversity that inspire a number of public policy acts. Mobilizing debate and analysis of researchers from various countries is of quite some interest in that Europe, as a whole, encompasses different views of what it means to live together. It also englobes changing definitions of what status should be recognized or given to 'Diversity'.

You can present a paper in one of the workshops organized in Toulouse by the ENHR Working Groups. The workshops' themes cover the main issues on housing: Economics, Finance and Market, Social or Private Rental Housing, Home Ownership, Legal Aspects, Ageing Populations, Homelessness, Poverty Neighborhoods, or Housing Policy, Regeneration, Mobility, Affordable Housing, Sustainability and so on. The Workshops' list and the co-ordinators' names are available on the Conference Website (www.enhr2011.com).

On Monday, July 4, 2011, the day before the ENHR Conference, a "New Housing Researchers' Day" will be held to allow students and post-doctoral fellows to present and compare their work on housing and habitat.
