Location: Auditorium du Pôle des langues et civilisations, 65 Rue des Grands Moulins 75013

Synopsis:

Inscriptions can open up a world extending far beyond chisel marks on the stone surface. In eight roundtables, we propose to explore the rich cultural history of epigraphy in East Asia. By striding out its multiple dimensions of time and space, both physical and imaginary, scholars from the sinographic sphere with diverse disciplinary backgrounds will attempt to chart together the Epiverse. The experimental format of this conference aims at facilitating present and future collaborations in the field, and defining common research paths on stone inscriptions and inscribed landscapes.

Preparation:

Attendees can prepare their answers to the 8 themes and questions, so that each session functions like a roundtable, rather than conventional speeches. Coffee is provided in 30 min breaks in-between sessions in the Foyer adjacent to our Auditorium. During lunchtime, guided tours of the exhibition "Sculpter les nuages, la montagne enlacée" about the four mountains inscribed by Zheng Daozhao between 511 and 516 CE are proposed in the Galerie adjacent to the Foyer. In each session, two scholars among our guests will show a few slides of their material (about 10 min) and one or two discussants will be commenting on all of the submitted answers to the session questions (about 15 min), followed by an open roundtable where all participants can join the conversation (the remaining 30 min).

DAY 1 - OCTOBER 15

9:00 – 9:30  Welcome address

9:30 – 10:45  1 – Digital Synergies 數字文人
Which digital tools do you use and how do they impact the perception of your material and the structure of your analysis if so? How can we create synergies across projects beyond technical advice? What are the challenges in building shared ontologies for inscribed landscapes/epigraphy/rubbings?

11:15 – 12:30  2 – Managing Monuments 遺產悖論
How have inscribed landscapes been managed between antiquarianism and heritagization? How has the challenge of preserving the environment and rock surface been met when inscriptions are traditionally valued in the shape of rubbings? Who is the audience for the heritagized inscriptions?

14:00 – 15:15  3 – Transforming Spaces 空間變異
In what different kinds of spaces (religious, political, social, ...) are inscriptions embedded and what places do they create? How do spaces/places coexist and interact? How are they navigated, imagined, visualized, and represented? In what ways are they transformed and or transformative?

15:45 – 17:00  4 – Traveling Legacy 傳統轉換
How did visual and textual epigraphic knowledge circulate and impact artistic practices – including avant-garde and modern experiments - across time and space? What similarities/differences in the handling of this legacy can we identify between late imperial and early modern East Asian elites?

17:30 – 18:30  Keynote lecture by Sakata Gensho 坂田玄翔

DAY 2 - OCTOBER 16

9:00 – 10:15  5 – Thinking Matters 開山策略
What are the motivations and modes of appropriation of mountains, stones, and other matters? By which strategies do states, communities, individuals – as well as divine or non-human agents – "develop" mountains? How do these strategies translate into physical markers and textual/verbal discourse?

10:45 – 12:00  6 – Conceiving Identity 身份確證
How do poetry, religion, and calligraphy shape identity? How do epitaphs and steles, with their specific literary genres and calligraphic styles, allow us to reconstruct networks of historical figures? Beyond the monolithic notion of a person as "author", how can we deconstruct identity into its interrelated facets?

14:00 – 15:15  7 – Calligraphic Variation 書刊風格
How do we define and describe (calli)graphic variation and style? How does the visual analysis of calligraphy today rely on descriptive vocabularies developed since the medieval period? What can we still learn from calligraphic practice, and what would a practice-derived descriptive vocabulary look like? How could such a vocabulary apply to epigraphy?

15:45 – 17:00  8 – Antiquarian Practices 試驗金石
What are the specific antiquarian modes of handling monuments and surrogates? What dimensions of objects do sensorial interactions reveal that are lost in both modern armchair scholarship and archaeology?

17:30 – 18:00  Closing remarks
