

ENRGHI 2010

10-11 June, Geography Institute of Paris, France

Provisional program

Thursday 10th June

PLENARY SESSION

Tim Brown, Secretary/Treasurer of GHRG, Queen Mary University of London, UK

G rard Salem, Professor, University of Paris 10, France, Original aspects of the French approach of the Geography of Health

THEMATIC SESSIONS

Session 1: Health policies

DUCHENE Catherine, University of Paris Dauphine, France, Territory and LTC regulation

MC GARROL Sarah, University of St Andrews, Scotland, Exploring and understanding factors which influence patient engagement and attendance at cardiac rehabilitation programmes in NHS Fife: initial findings

SCODELLARO Claire, INED, France, The role of implementation of emergency services and cardiovascular units in the evolution of cardiovascular mortality: a use of geographic variations

SOULIES Dorian, University of Nice Sophia-Antipolis, Improving the knowledge of operational activities of emergency services using spatio-temporal analysis

LE GOFF Erwann, University of Rennes 2, France, "Healthy cities" in France: which issues for urban politics?

MATERA Giovanni, EHESS, France, The policies of proximity and the European model of activation. The case of Basaglia's heritage in the Friuli-Venezia region

Session 2: Neighborhood and health I

GRILLO Francesca, University of Paris 6, INSERM, Women's health and inequalities: does residence area play a role? The case of cervical screening test in Paris metropolitan area

SALZE Paul, University of Strasbourg, France, An individual-based model for the study of the obesity epidemic in French adolescents

BURGOINE Thomas, Newcastle University, UK, An Obesogenic North East? A study into the links between obesity and the foodscape across twenty years 1980-2000

CASEY Romain, University of Lyon I, France, Dietary and physical activity habits and spatial accessibility of food stores and sports facilities in French pre-adolescents (the ELIANE project)

MEDFORD Wayne, University of Durham, UK, An urban park and its relation to local residents' health and well-being: an overview of thesis research to date

DARYLL Archibald, University of St Andrews, Scotland, Does area regeneration improve residents' health and well-being?

Session 3: Risk and exposure geographies

MEHA Christelle, University of Paris 4, France, Methods for mapping and assessing human exposure to Lyme disease: a case study in a suburban forest of France

TSCHIRHART Céline, University of Strasbourg, IRD, France, Mercury in the Rio Beni (Bolivian Amazon): from a contaminated nature to an unequal exposition downstream from Rurrenabaque

BORDERON Marion, University of Aix-en-Provence, France, Urban malaria in Brazzaville: local heterogeneity and global stake

PIERRAT Charlotte, University of Paris 1, France, For a territorial diagnosis of health risk on a fine scale: an attempt to modeling environmental variables of malaria (South Benin)

Session 4: Neighborhood and health II

GODILLON Sylvanie, University of Paris 1, INRETS, Higher injury rates in deprived areas: how to measure the influence of mobility and residential neighbourhoods?

VALLEE Julie, University of Paris 6, INSERM, France, Depression and daily mobility in Paris metropolitan area

GUYARD Audrey, University of Grenoble, France, Relationship between geographical variations in participation and the environment in children with cerebral palsy

EDWARDS Michaela, University of Lancaster, UK, Coping with stress in the workplace: a geographical social construction?

Session 5: Infectious diseases

PERCHOUX Camille, University of Aix-en-Provence, France, Consider a synthesis tool to malaria analysis

ONYEHALAM Ijeoma Anthonia, University of Newcastle, UK, A mixed spatial methodological approach in data generation for a spatio-temporal MIS

ECKHARDT Rose, Mc Gill University, Canada, Assessing the potential for autochthonous malaria transmission in Canada: an Ontario case study

Session 6: Mobility, migration and health

BOULANGER Claire, University of Poitiers, France, Transnational community as an actor in the health systems of the sending area: the Malians living in France

PLARD Mathilde, University of Angers, France, Spatial aspects related to health issues: migration and health

KRETOWICZ Pawel, Jagiellonian University of Cracow, Poland, Population mobility and health outcomes in mountainous areas on the example of the Polish Carpathians

Poster session

McFANN Hudson, University of Ohio State, USA, Legacies of extraction: landfills and environmental health in Appalachian Ohio, USA

MEJRI Wahidi, University of Paris 1, France, Healthcare development in Tunisia

BIG-CANOE Katie, University of Western Ontario, Canada, First Nations youth along northern Lake Superior: perceptions of their health and school environments

COTICHELLI Giordano, Politecnica delle Marche University, Italy, Regional distribution of postpartum depressive symptoms in Italy

GODILLON Sylvanie, University of Paris 1, France, Environmental justice and road traffic : a typology of neighbourhoods by accident density in Dresden, Germany

LE NEINDRE Charlène, University of Paris 7, France, A multi-scale approach links between geographical contexts and population health: asthma in western France

RIahi Mustapha, University of Paris 1, France, The thermal environment in summer in a coastal city in Tunisia: the case of the city of Tunis

PLENARY SESSION

Eric Daudé, University of Rouen, France, Multi-Agent Modelling and Health

ENRGHI Business Meeting (including hustings for ENRGHI 2011)

THEMATIC SESSIONS

Session 7: Health care and accessibility

BERGER Morgan, University of Rennes 2, France, Assessing the accessibility to health care for hemophiliac patients: the case of a French region

BAYER Florian, Biomedicine Agency, France, Using a gravity model for allocation of livers to transplant

LEFEBVRE Bertrand, University of Rouen, France, A hospital too far? Of poor patients, private hospitals and spatial analysis in Delhi

UEBERSCHAR Nicole, Humboldt University of Berlin, Germany, Modeling of catchment areas for health facilities in Africa

Session 8: Disability and ageing geographies

ANDRE Evelyne, University of Paris 1, France, Disability and home for the elder

RAPEGNO Noémie, EHESS, France, Living in medico-social residences for disabled people and shaping one's life: the physically disabled people's residential path life in question

PETIT Mélanie, University of Rouen, France, Neurodegenerative diseases care places, health places?

BORIOLI Jason, University of Lausanne, Switzerland, Bidimensional regression beyond goodness-of-fit: measuring geometric distortions in urban mental maps produced by blind people, wheelchair users and people without disabilities

Session 9: Spatial inequalities of health

CLEMENS Tom, University of St Andrews, Scotland, Unemployment and mortality in Scotland: towards a causal explanation

TERASHIMA Mikiko, Dalhousie University, Canada, Temporal trends of life expectancy and health deficiency across regions in Nova Scotia, Canada

PUYO Béatrice, University of Tours, France, Geography of Health in Lebanon

DE FONTGALLAND Charlotte, University of Paris 10, France, Spatial health inequalities in Cantal

OVIASU Osaretin, University of Sheffield, UK, Spatial analysis of chronic kidney disease in Nigeria: case study in Edo State

Session 10: Representation, culture and health

DROUIN Catherine, University of Sherbrooke, Canada, Do linguistic barriers have an impact on health disparities in Québec? A look at the situation for myocardial infarction cases

MOBILLION Virginie, University of Paris 10, IRD, France, The paradox of national integration through health care practices: the case of Lao PDR

WINKELMANN Till, University of Bonn, Germany, The relationship between risk perception, health conceptions and stigmatization in the case of HIV/AIDS – research results from urban Ethiopia and rural Malawi

SCHMIDT-EHRMANN Marie-José, University of Paris 1, France, Information and communication on transmissible diseases: the case of dengue in Noumea and in Papeete

Closing session