

Who?

The MAYS network was founded in 2009 and connects more than 250 B.A. students, M.A. students, PhD candidates and postdocs in Medical Anthropology, mainly from European universities and research institutions.

MAYS works under the umbrella of the European Association of Social Anthropologists and is part of the larger EASA Medical Anthropology network.

How?

MAYS uses several online tools:

- a Google Group, which allows for fast dissemination of news, queries and questions among the members;
→ to register: <http://tinyurl.com/MAYS-EASA>
- a website, presenting MAYS' activities, its members' fieldwork locations, and where relevant news are posted;
→ <http://www.mays-easa.org>
- an Academia.edu subgroup that allows registered users to know more about MAYS members research activities and interests.
→ http://lists.academia.edu/MAYS_Medical_Anthropology_Young_Scholars

What for?

- Get in contact with fellow students and colleagues who share your research interests;
- Meet other students and young scholars (we have organized 2 workshops and a conference so far in Berlin, Oxford and Warsaw);
- Find out more about other (medical) anthropology programs and research institutions in Europe;
- Ask questions about anthropological literature, concepts, etc.;
- Share and receive information on conferences, scholarships and job offerings;
- Be part of a growing diverse network of creative, professional and supportive young scholars who share a common interest in medical anthropology.

More?

Get in touch with MAYS coordinators (Susann Huschke, Freie Universität Berlin and Claire Beaudevin, Cermes3-CNRS, Paris)

→ mays-easa@gmail.com

Learn more about EASA and its Medical Anthropology network/committee

→ <http://easaonline.org>

→ <http://easaonline.org/networks/medical/index.htm>

Learn more about Academia.edu features

→ <http://www.mays-easa.org/2011/09/mays-members-on-academiaedu.html>

NB - No membership fees

