Research Fellowships Georg Eckert Institute for International Textbook Research

Subject: Fellowship Programme 2014

Location: Georg Eckert Institute for International Textbook Research (GEI), Braunschweig, Germany

Deadline: 15 Sept. 2013

The Georg Eckert Institute for International Textbook Research will award several short-term fellowships for visiting researchers in 2014.

The GEI's fellowship programme supports research on textbooks and other educational media. Fellowships aim to provide both young and established academics and textbook authors with the opportunity to use the extensive international textbook collection in its specialist library, conducting comparative studies, exchanging ideas and discussing their findings with the academic staff of the Institute.

Individual fellowships of 1,000 Euros per month (pro rata) are awarded for research of between four and six weeks. Depending on the availability of funds, assistance with travel expenses (50 percent of expenses; maximum 500 EUR) may be provided. Potential fellows should stipulate in their application if a need for travel expenses exists. Established academics and practitioners are also invited to apply for the Otto-Bennemann-Grant (2,000 Euros/month pro rata).

Applications are invited from academics, individuals involved in the production of textbooks (design, writing, editing, etc.), employees of educational publishers, and other individuals who influence the development of curricula and textbooks. Research projects should be relevant to the collection in the GEI's specialist library. Applicants are requested to provide:

- Concise project description with details of topic, research objectives and methods (max. 3 pages)
- Curriculum vitae
- Publication list
- Research plan and details of proposed dates and duration of research trip.

Fellows must be resident in Braunschweig during their period of research at the GEI. All visiting fellows are requested to produce a research report following their stay at the GEI.

Research can be conducted at the GEI at any time during 2014. Successful candidates will be notified by October 2013.

Please send your application no later than *15 September 2013* by e-mail (PDF, max. 2 MB) to: halder (at) gei.de
