

International Workshop on Income Contingent Loans

Public policies for funding higher education and managing social risk

16 June, 2014 - Paris

Maison des Sciences Economique
(6th Floor Room)

106 - 112 boulevard de l'Hôpital — 75013 Paris

As a part of national financial arrangements for higher education, income contingent student loans have been implemented in many countries (including Australia, Sweden, South Africa, England and Thailand, among others). These schemes are generally collected through income taxation systems and are repaid only when current income exceeds a specified level. This workshop aims at gathering internationally recognized experts on this issue, as well as French practitioners within higher education and within public policy. During the sessions, the results of high-quality applied research will be presented. The policy implications of these results will be discussed in a round table.
